Fans Face Tips, Mint Juleps, Losses

Hang on! Don't Push! Look out . . . These were familiar cries as thousands of Derby fairs leaped aboard Fourth Street buses Saturday headed for Churchill Downs and the S9th running of the Kentucky Derby.

Upon arrival at the track, there was a mad scramble for the gates and an attempt to be first in line to place bets on the first race and the Deiby.

Most of the horse fans began arriving at 10 cr 11 a.m. If you were among the unfortunate late ones, there was no standing room left at the fences by 11:30.

However, the betters and horse enthusiasts weren't the only ones present at this spectacle, called "America's Greatest Sporting Event." There were the usual group of pickpockets, bookies, eclebrities, and the amateur psychologists who indulge in constant people watching.

A driky wouldn't be complete without the tipster. He is the little man who approache everybody possessing a racing form and says, "For a couple of dollars. I'll point our the winner of the next race."

When asked how he knows, the little man replies, I've on a friend who is the friend of a friend of a friend of the stable boy who knows a friend, etc."

If you decide to go along with the tipster, whether you win or lose, you never see the little man again. He is some in a flash with your money, snickering in delight.

This is just one of the many odd-balls that you find in the crowd on Derby Day. Another is the professional flower mortician.

On Louisville's biggest day, the flowers at Churchill Downs are protruding in their finest glory. That is, until the disgusted loser or flower-stamper, takes a gander at them, He proceeds to throw his losing tickets, stubs, and rating 1 mm in the flower garden for final burial One, not knowma, would think he was fertilizing the soil.

Perhaps the most amusing event of the entire afternoon is when the weather-heaten old man decides to take his daily nap in the midst of the crowd. As a result, people are forced to play hopscotch around and over him in order to reach their destination. (One must step carefully in order to avoid smashing his snoaring expression.)

Another problem the race enthusiasts face is the cultured ladies and gentlemen who consume too many of those delicacies known as mint juleps. These cool refreshers are made of one-third bourbon, a sprig of mint and ice and ice, and more ice.

With the sun glowering down, the mint julep consumers attempt to save their lovely glasses. So they buy one glass after another and in may cases forget to bet on the races. Before long, they have one glass stacked on top of many until they acciden'ly move the wrong way and down comes the tower of souvents.

Is Derby Day worth it? Ask anyone that has been

Is Derby Day worth it? Ask anyone that has been and they will complain of their losses, the drunks, and sore feet, but look around next year and you will see them fighting the mob and enduring the same discomforts.

Congress To Meet Tonight In Fourth Try At Quorum

By BILL GRANT Kernel Staff Writer

Vol. LIV. No. 104

Student Congress will meet at 7 o'clock tonight in Room 111 of McVey Hall.

The meeting follows a hectic week for the congress during which the president refused to call a fourth congress meeting to consider the spring election and dissident members of the congress petitioned for the meeting.

The week closed with a Student Congress presidential candidate charging coercion against a faction of the Kentucky Democratic party. Yesterday, a Student Congress nominee for treasurer disavowed all campus alliances and declared himself a free candidate.

In the most recent development, Jim Childers, a student Congress nominee for treasurer issued a statement disavowing all of his campus alliances because of the congress elections "taking on a statewide political flavor."

Childers said, "Because of personal feelings toward getting involved in state politics and since state politics has entered into the campus election, I disalign myself from any campus ticket. I will endorse neither of the candidates for president."

Childers disclosed that he had previously agreed to run on the ticket of Jim Pitts, a candidate for president or Student Congress.

This was only the latest development in a long events involving Student Congress. Student Congress met April 29 in an attempt to get charification on he scheduled Student Congress election. The meeting was adjourned by Student Congress president Raleigh Lane after failure to reach a quorum of 55

In scheduling Student Cougress elections for this spring and in nominating officers, congress members overlooked the provision of the constitution placing elections in the fall.

Spring elections were held last year because the congress temporarily suspended the by laws of the constitution.

Lane called three meetings in an attempt to suspend the bylaws again in order to hold spring elections. All three meetings ended when a quorum failed to show up.

Lane told the members present at the meeting April 29 that he would not call another meeting and expressed the view that the present opganization of the congress was too bulky. "The organization needs to be purged." he said.

Bill Kenton, a member of Student Congress, pleaded with Lane to call another meeting "to save the reputation of a good congress." Lane relused all requests.

Fillowing the merting Kentin started a petition which was sized by 13 construction member. There the high started and the

at 7 o'clock tonight. According to the Student Congress constitution, a petition of 13 members is sufficient to force the president to call a meeting.

Lane accepted the petition and called tonight's meeting.

The meeting place was not easily set, however. Lane told the petitioners that they would not be able to use Lafferty. Hall, the regular meeting place, on Tuesday night.

Lane said the place of the meeting would be up to Kenton and the petitioners. Kenton said, "I am just delighted that Lane would like to ask my advice on the meeting place but he is the president." When Kenton failed to contact Lane, the SC president reserved the room in Mc-Vev.

Kenton said that he only petitioned in behalf of Pitts. Pitts was nominated before the constitutional issue came up. His supporters have been pressing for a spring election.

It was Pit's who was involved in the political controversy late last week.

Pitts publicly accused Jerry Anderson, campus coordinator, student for Breathitt, of coercion in an alle ed attempt to set Pitts to sign a letter pledging his mon participation" in the Kentucky governor's race.

Pitts accused Anderson of preparing a letter addressed to himself and "suggesting" to Pitts that it would be beneficial in the Student Congress race if he signed it.

Pitts said that Anderson told him the failure to sign the letter would possibly cost him the election. Anderson said that the letter was only "to satisfy myself that Pitts had no intention of using his position to endorse A. B. Chandler for governor."

However, Anderson admitted to a Kernel reporter that he had sent the letter.

Kenton has pledged an all-out effort to reach enough members to get a quorum at tonight's meeting. Neither side has announced what they will do if a quorum, not reached.

SC Representatives Must Show Responsibility

Congress in order to represent their respective colleges have an obligation to attend the specially called SC meeting scheduled tonight in Mc-Vev Hall.

During the past few weeks congress has met three times in an effort to suspend a section of the SC constitution's by-laws which would allow a spring election. But, due to the lack of a quorum the meetings were dismissed.

Many believe that the SC's lack of power to obtain a quorum can be blamed on student apathy but we feel that this isn't the real reason behind the quorum block.

There has been a conscious effort on the part of several of our political leaders on campus to kill the by-laws vote by strongly suggesting that SC representatives stay away from the meetings, thus forcing SC elections to be held next fall. We agree that these members of the congress have the right to be against suspending the by-laws but they should be willing to stand up in congress and state their position and deteat the motion by a voice vote, not by staying away from the meeting.

Political implications have also entered the election. Charges have been made that Jim Pitts, SC presidential nomince, will openly support A. B. "Happy" Chandler in the May gubematorial primary. Mr. Pitts has stated in print that he will not under any circumstances support other Mr. breathitt or Mr. Claudi m. We believe this is sufficient proof of his interi-

The representatives of Student tions. It by some chance Mr. Pitts does endorse one of the candidates, if elected to the SC president's post, then proper action should be taken against him at that time and not now. But, we would like to ask this question: How much influence upon the gubernatorial primary race would the support of the new congress president have upon the election? We think very little, so why worry about it?

> The congress also has a responsibility to the student body and we believe in order to run a more efficient congress it is of vital importance that elections be held in the spring. Not only would time be saved in the fall but the newly elected president could begin planning his course of action for the coming year. This was one of the reasons last year's elections were held in the spring. Whether this time was well spent is of no importance

> The first semester of next year is also going to be a very busy and fast one, ending Dec. 20. To have an election of hoth officers and representatives will delay the workings of SC for almost a month. We agree that the president is held back on many projects until the representatives are elected but we think this extra time will be very beneficial in making plans for the congress.

> We strongly urge all members of Student Congress to attend this meeting and thus voice their opinions to the congress. If they want to reject the by law vete, fine. But do so by a voice vote and not by a lack of a diam'n.

the movies now gracing the screens of our local theaters, it is very refreshing to take note of an extraordinary program of movies on our campus.

As a finale to a very successful and entertaining year, The English Department Film Series will present "Citizen Kane" tonight.

For the past few years this film series has gained in stature and quality among campus circles and has furnished many pleasant evenings for students who could break away from the hooks for an hour or so.

Among the outstanding presentations this year have been, "Intruder inthe Dust," "The Informer," "Open City," and "The Monse That Roared."

We would like to extend our belated congratulations to all persons connected with this enlightening contribution to the university community.

Unfortunately, the word of these entstading movies has been slowspecialic and many students have been totally imaware that such a progrant exist.

A Fable

What It Was, Was Football

only a bazaar electronic accident allowed the details of this case to be disclosed.

The story began on April 21, the night of the annual Blue-White football game. Rick Catter, a student at the University, was sufficient the stands listening to the broadcast of the same on his transist r radic as he watched.

Suddenly, in the third quarter, the broadcast was interrupted by a long blare of static, and when the interference ccased, Carter tound himself listening to a different broadcast.

At first he thought it was another comm retal station and he has about ready to try and find the constant broade of when the realized he was listening to a wilkin-table convenient in

Curious, he listened for , to v minute , without identity row chazed the convertation at this circum first of two first circums.

BZZT! Homer, you know very well the fans around here den't win football games. That wide-open stuff just doesn't pack the $\pm ear$ in the Southeastern Conference.

BZZT! Yeah, Charlie, but maybe once in awhile we could try it. It worked pretty well at Highlands High School.

There was a long pause at this point and Carter thought about what he was hearing. Then it dawned on him that the conversation was about the game in progress on the field. Every time a play was run, talk would cease until the play was completed, then would deal with that play. He listened more carefully.

BZZT! Charlie, confound it, now you've got to let me try something else. My team's getting beat down here. I can't let my team get beat, even if it is an intrasquad game.

BZZT! Now, Homer, relax. Try that middle again. Have confidence.

BZZT! Dammit, Charlie, lemme try some of my plays. Look at the stands. People are leaving. They're getting bored stiff. This is supposed to entertain them, not give them a lesson on modern football tactics!

BZZT! Now, Homer. Our boys will break through that middle pretty soon. They'll show these fans some inner toughness. That'll make 'em happy.

BZZT! Charlie, the other team's g ing to win this same if I don't get to use some of my plays.

BZZT! Loo't. H mer, just secure that rezzle-dezle this won exact right state thom; ushay in h. h. whole do in mean it will win fore in the big time.

At this point, a cordine to Carter, the team on the field suddenly take to the air and vent wild with passes, and end runs. The Lamb wound up with a great flourish and the crowd roased their dellight. At this point, as suddenly as the conversation had drowned out his original lation, it faded and the station returned.

Carter listened and watched as the teams took to the air and finished up m a wild, razzle-dazzle flourish, bringing a great r ar of approval from the crowd.

He said he then sat still and tried to decide what to do ab it what he had heatd. His first impulse was to report it to some ne, but he thought it might course him a lot of publicity and, having recently been caught passing off counterfeit ID cards, he was afreight to detail the said of the said of the said of the said and the said of the s '1 additional publicity,

So the lend between the Saturday Evening Post and Paul Bryani, Alabama's head football coach, continues

While we admit that Bryant advocates rugged football, we must also admit that he is a sworn advocate of the art of winning. To consider Bryant in a fixing attempt appears highly ridiculous. He has one of the winningest records in football, owns enough stock and property to retire today, and in general appears above the level of gamblers and fixers, FUTURE: Ned knows firsthand the problems that gradnates face today. The biggest problem, for most of them, is finding jobs good enough to enable them to stay in Kentucky. To provide these jobs, Kentucky needs industry and new businesses. To attract them, Kentucky must have better roads, better schools, and modern, progressive, honest leadership in Frankfort. Ned Breathitt can be trusted to provide the programs and the leadership.
